A Message from Angie

Last night we celebrated the achievements and accomplishments of twenty-three eleventh and twelfth grade students at our annual National Honor Society induction ceremony. The National Association of Secondary School Principals established the National Honor Society in 1921 to recognize outstanding high school students. While we retain some flexibility in determining how our chapter is run, the national organization sets the guidelines and determines the standards for membership. The bar is high. Induction into the National Honor Society recognizes student excellence in four areas: scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Students must show distinction in all four of these areas in order to be considered for membership. These four qualities serve not only as the foundation of the National Honor Society, they reflect the values of our school's mission: inspiring every student to excel in academics, service, and life.

Our prospective NHS members undergo a rigorous selection process that requires students to reflect on the meaning of academics, leadership, service, and character. Candidates must honestly present how they demonstrate these qualities to a faculty selection committee. During last night's ceremony, we celebrated these traits and our students who each exemplify these qualities. Our new inductees pledged their commitment to continued excellence.

SSCPS Senior and current NHS member Tessa Beshere, summarized the meaning of our school's chapter of the NHS.

Our chapter is proud to have been inducting new members since 2005. Today's ceremony indicates the continuing emphasis on excellence...throughout the year, members of our chapter serve as role models for other students...our chapter members are leaders in student organizations. We serve our school and community through many activities including Read for the Record, a national literacy event, and organizing blood drives with the Red Cross... We are proud of this record of accomplishment and welcome new members who bring new energy in support of our continuing work as NHS members.

The SSCPS chapter of the National Honor Society is active and visible throughout the campus and community. With the guidance of their advisor, Katie Cianelli, NHS students regularly plan service projects which benefit both the school and wider community. These service projects include peer tutoring, organizing blood drives, volunteering at local schools, and working in shelters. NHS students have taken on a leadership role through formal means such as presentations to the student body, and in less informal ways such as serving as role models for our younger students. Congratulations to our newest National Honor Society members.

With the induction of these students we now have 43 National Honor Society members. It is exciting to have such a large and vibrant group at work. In addition to the work of our newly achievements. You all have much to be proud of today.
