A Message from Kristen

As November unfolds, we reflect on connections that make learning more meaningful. In English language arts, history, and social studies classrooms, students explore how people create meaning and connect with one another through language, art, and culture.

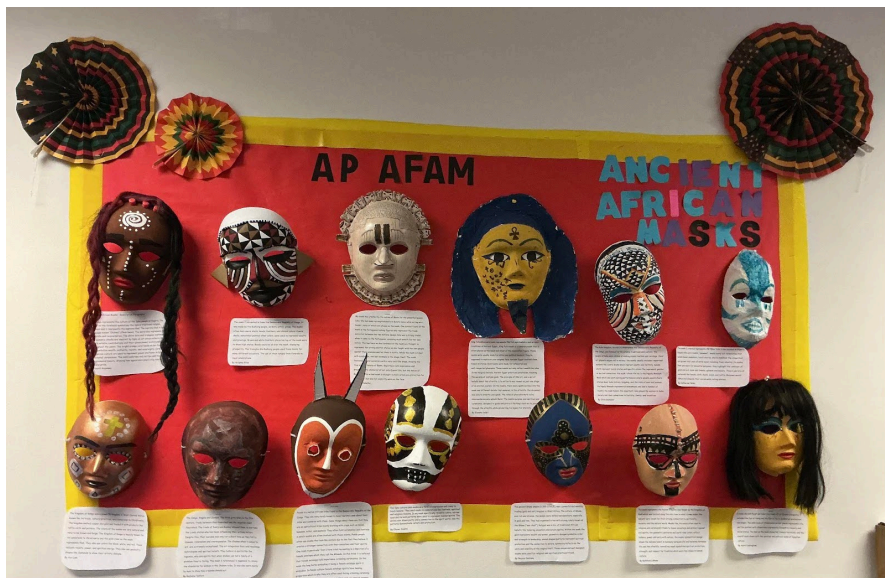

Notable Happenings

- Elementary School: Third graders visited Plimoth Patuxet Museums on Tuesday to learn more about what life was like in 17th-century Wampanoag and Pilgrim settlements. The living history museum offers several online resources for people of all ages to learn more about history, including interactive "You Are the Historian" games.
- Middle School: Holocaust survivor Werner Salinger spoke to eighth graders about his experiences. Students had many questions and thoughts to share based on their study of The Diary of a Young Girl by Anne Frank.

Joshua Walker, Holocaust Survivor Werner Salinger, and Zaid Almadi

- High School: In Advanced Placement® African American Studies, students bring history and heritage to life through Motherland Mondays. As they learn about Africa and the African diaspora, students share something new they discovered from a family story, a class reading, or their own research. Students also designed ancient African masks inspired by traditional art, symbolism, and cultural meaning.

Connecting Through Reading

As we enter the holiday season, consider using some of the extra time at home reading together. Whether it's a picture book, a poem, a news article, or a favorite childhood story, shared reading builds connection. The Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) offers a webpage for families interested in bolstering their child's early literacy skills. It features a recommended read-aloud routine, tips for expanding a child's vocabulary, and book lists, among other resources.

The DESE Family Guides also invite families to spark meaningful conversations and connect classroom learning to home by asking open-ended questions such as:

- Can you tell me about something you read today?
- What kind of writing did you do in school today?

- What topics have you researched recently?
- Whose perspectives did you think about in class today, other than your own?
- How does what you're learning help you understand the world?

Thank you for helping our students find meaning in the stories they explore.

From the Dean's Desk

Dear Families,

As we move into Thanksgiving week, I want to pause and name what this season is about. Gratitude is not an idea we talk about once a year. It is a practice. It asks us to slow down, pay attention, and recognize what we already have in our lives.

On Monday, our 6th graders will wrap up their gratitude project. It has been good to see them take time to reflect and put their thoughts into real words and images. Our 5th graders will not have an Advisory next week, as we all head into a well-earned break.

This season also gives us a chance to look outward. There are many people in our larger community who are struggling. One way to show appreciation for what we have is to offer support to those who need it.

That can be food drives, clothing donations, or simple acts of care. It does not have to be big. It just has to be real.

As we move into the break, I hope you take time to rest, connect with the people you care about, and find one small way to give back.

Thank you for all you do to support our students and our school.

Original Works Program Orders

Original Works is an annual fundraiser run by the Art Department where families have the opportunity to purchase keepsake products (mug, tote bag, keychain, pillowcase, blanket, ornament) with their students' art on it. K-8 students have worked for the past few weeks in art classes to create meaningful artwork that can be used for this purpose.

Students are being sent home with custom ordering instructions during their art classes this week so that families can place their orders online at home. All orders are due by Monday, November 24th, and products ordered by the deadline will arrive at school on Wednesday, December 18th - just in time for the holiday break!

Afterschool Enrichment Program

After-School Active Zone

This week in Active Zone we focused on building core soccer skills and strengthening our sense of teamwork and sportsmanship. Students worked on dribbling control, passing accuracy, and communicating effectively during small-sided games. We spent time practicing how to move into open space, support teammates, and make smart decisions on the field.

A big emphasis this week was sportsmanship, celebrating good plays from anyone on the field, using positive language, and showing respect during competitive moments. The group did a great job shaking hands after matches, encouraging one another, and demonstrating what it means to play with integrity.

We're looking forward to another fun and active week ahead!

Please check expiration dates of medication before sending it in. Medication that expires during the school year will need to be replaced before it expires.
